

Limited term (3-year) instructor position, Faculty of Computer Science, Dalhousie University.

The Faculty of Computer Science is seeking candidates for the position of Instructor for a 3-year limited term position beginning January 1st 2018. The primary duties of this position are the development and support of undergraduate courses, and the development, delivery and support of practical learning and evaluation. This may include development and management of undergraduate labs, related to courses, development and management of practicums, on-line resources and teaching assistants, development of faculty resources to support teaching, and participating in other Faculty administration and undergraduate affairs.

Candidates to this position must possess a master's or doctorate degree in CS or a related discipline and must have demonstrated ability or potential for teaching and course development. Teaching experience at the university level is not required but is preferred. The successful candidate must be prepared to develop and deliver curricula for core undergraduate courses through a variety of live and on-line media. The successful candidate must also be prepared to work individually with faculty, staff, and teaching assistants, and students to grow and improve the delivery of the Faculty's undergraduate programs.

Eligible candidates are encouraged to apply for this position with a package including a C.V., personal statement, and the addresses and emails of three references. Candidates are encouraged to submit a teaching dossier that provides any available and pertinent evidences of curriculum delivery, development, administration, and innovation. The applicant must also include the Equity Self-Identification form as part of their application material (see URL below).

Application packages must be submitted in PDF format to appointments@cs.dal.ca by August 31st 2017. Please also arrange for your referees to forward letters of reference directly to this email address by the same deadline.

All candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent resident will be given priority. Dalhousie University is committed to fostering a collegial culture grounded in diversity and inclusiveness. The university encourages applications from Aboriginal people, persons with a disability, racially visible persons, women, persons of minority sexual orientations and gender identities, and all candidates who would contribute to the diversity of our community.
