

SENATE ACADEMIC PROGRAMS AND RESEARCH COMMITTEE (SAPRC)

TERMS OF REFERENCE

PURPOSE

The purpose of the Senate Academic Programs and Research Committee (SAPRC) is to oversee academic program approvals (including modifications and termination), oversee quality assurance of academic programs, oversee quality assurance of academic and research Centres and Institutes, and develop and recommend policies concerning the ethical conduct of research and scholarly activity.

Supporting Senate's principles and values, SAPRC's decisions must: (i) enhance the quality of the programs and research conducted at the university; (ii) support diversity as is required both by considerations of justice and to sustain rich and rigorous debate; (iii) advance the idea that human diversity provides essential elements of strength, resilience and innovation; (iv) promote the idea that inclusiveness must inform decisions at all levels; and (v) reflect and respect the diversity of human experiences and backgrounds. As such, SAPRC will rigorously adhere to these principles and values by applying equity (the practice of identifying and removing barriers) in all its deliberations and activities, to ensure an inclusive outcome.

Equity diversity and inclusion (EDI) measures strive to reduce systemic barriers and biases experienced by historically and currently underrepresented and equity-deserving groups¹. Differing views, ideas and approaches, and equitable and inclusive practices help promote academic program and research excellence. Engagement with that multiplicity of perspectives creates critical thinkers.

Definitions

1. Diversity is the condition of having a broad range of differences, represented in its people, perspectives, policies, programs and practice.
2. Inclusion is an outcome where community members experience equal access to opportunities for education, employment, promotion and success in the Faculty and a sense of belonging and engagement in the life and work of the institution.
3. Equity is a process that takes diversity and differences into account through fair and non-discriminatory approaches and practices, removing barriers² to ensure inclusion.

¹ Equity-deserving Groups: female-identified individuals, individuals of Indigenous ancestry (and particularly Mi'kmaq individuals), racialized individuals (and particularly African Nova Scotian), person with (dis)abilities, and individuals who identify as 2SLGBTQIA+.

² (Dis)ability is a central element of any discussions about oppression linked to race, class, gender, sexual orientation, ethnicity, religion etc.
